
Cahill Named Law360 2024 Banking Practice Group of the Year for Second Consecutive Year

Date: 01/27/25

Cahill has been named a 2024 Law360 Banking Practice Group of the Year for the second consecutive year.

In the firm's profile, Law360 specifically highlights the dismissals the firm earned in two shareholder securities class actions on behalf of Credit Suisse and UBS following the banks' merger. Cahill remains the sole outside counsel to the banks on all U.S. litigation matters related to the merger.

On winning these cases, Herb Washer, Chair of Cahill's Executive Committee, said, "The arguments we made, and successfully made, have broader application to the banking industry and to other companies facing similar issues ... A lot of financial institutions get blamed for a lot of things that they aren't really responsible for, and sometimes it's easier to settle cases like that than to actually defend, but in the right circumstances, you can and probably should defend against those allegations."

Law360 also underlined the firm's strategic rise in other related financial practice areas like cryptocurrency and private credit.
